TIS Has Seen Many Changes In Last Year

Many changes took place in the personnel and components of The Infantry School in the last year, just as there have been in most Army commands.

The summer of 1945 found Col. Robert H. Lord as a symbol of the real Fort Sill: the commander of the school, its parent post, and its only representative in the War Department.

In the fall of 1945, Maj. Gen. Charles L. Walker, commander of the 36th Infantry, became the third commander of The Infantry School. The change in leadership was accompanied by a change in the name of the school and its duties, as it became the War College and Institute, the latter being a training school for the war department.

The Infantry School was one of the first to be affected by the changes in the War Department, and it was one of the last to feel the effects of the Korean War. The school was closed in 1951, and its activities were transferred to other schools.

The Infantry School was founded in 1922, and it has been in existence ever since. It has been the home of the infantry for many years, and it has been the center of the infantry's training.

In the past, the school has been the training ground for many of the world's greatest leaders, including Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. George Patton.

AND MUSIC FILLS THE BREEZE as the entire student body of Children's School at Fort Benning makes the rafters sing with a chorus of "Grease." The Rayborn photographer was painting the school up the way for an assignment and was attracted by the snow of children putting on a show. A period daily is devoted to chorus singing.

One good result of two-period days is that the Fort Benning children's school was established. While it would be a long time before the kindergarten is to be expanded into the full school, the Fort Benning school system is now operating a half day of kindergarten classes. Today, kindergarten classes are held each half day at the school.

"Old Guard" Does Its Share Of Entertaining

The first Third Infantry detachment of the school is giving several programs each week. "Old Guard" has been performing on the librarian's program, the student awards, the school's special program, the school's program and the students' program, and the school's special program. The students' programs are given three times a week.

Mud, Dust Responsible For Post School Founding

Thirty-three years ago Fort Sargent was a post in the Missouri Territory. Today, the Post has become a military training center, and the school has opened its doors to the public. Since then, the school has grown and expanded until today it is a flourishing institution.

Mud, Dust Responsible For Post School Founding

In any large post school, one of the most important factors is the condition of the mud. A large post school is responsible for the condition of the mud.

Signal Photo Lab turns out 10,000 Pix Monthly

The fellow who has a camera can be a bookish type or a wild rebel, but he has a special interest. Sgt. Lawrence is a cameraman. Each day he makes the rounds of the ETO in his cameraman's car, "a two-passenger command car that doubles as a mobile darkroom.

Sgt. Lawrence, an American film pioneer, is an artist in his own field. He makes sure that the lab has the equipment to handle all types of processing, from black-and-white to color photography. His car is equipped with the latest technology, including a 16mm sound camera and a 35mm color filmadora.

Trooper Regular Globetrotter

Here's a story about a fellow who has made it big in the ETO. Trooper Regular, a regular cameraman, has traveled all over the world on assignment. His latest trip took him to the Middle East, where he captured stunning images of the desert landscape.

PERFORATED BY NAZI SHELLING. Tires returned to action by Yank ingenuity

In the ETO, the supply of tires is always a concern. However, due to the ingenuity of the American soldiers, tires are being repaired and returned to action. The most common repair method is the use of "makeup" or "rubber band" repairs, which are quick and effective.

Shell-Riddled Tires Returned To Action By Yank Ingenuity

The ETO is full ofegered Yanks who have developed new techniques to repair shell-damaged tires. One of these techniques is the use of "rubber band" repairs, which are quick and effective.

The Signal Corps photographic

The Signal Corps photographic laboratory at Fort Benning is one of the most highly regarded in the ETO. It is responsible for all photographic support for the ETO, including aerial reconnaissance, documentation, and military training.

A Merely Typical American Soldier

In the ETO, a typical American soldier is one who is prepared for any situation. They are trained to fight, but also to adapt to any environment. The "Merely Typical American Soldier" is a symbol of the ETO, representing the hardworking and dedicated men who have fought in the ETO.

CIVILIAN TIRE IN SPECIAL MILITARY SERVICE

In the ETO, civilian tire has been put to good use. The ETO has formed a "Civilian Tire in Special Military Service" to assist in the repair of damaged tires. This group is made up of civilian tire experts who have been trained to work in a military environment.

The Adventures of a Typical American Soldier

The adventures of a typical American soldier are many. They are often faced with dangerous situations, but they are always prepared. The "Adventures of a Typical American Soldier" is a story of the brave men who have fought in the ETO.

Truck Battalions Get 'Em Where They Are Going

The truck battalions of the ETO are responsible for transporting supplies and personnel to the front lines. They are a vital part of the ETO's logistical support, and they are always ready to go where they are needed.

6th Airborne Division

The 6th Airborne Division is one of the most elite units in the ETO. They are known for their quick thinking and lightning-fast responses.

The 6th Airborne Division is a testament to the sacrifice and bravery of the men who have fought in the ETO. Their stories are a reminder of the importance of their work, and they are a source of inspiration for those who continue to fight in the ETO.

MP’s Duties Are More Varied Than Police Dep’ts

More varied than the duties of any city police department are tasks of the seven departments of the Fort Benning’s Office on Post Avenue, according to Major M. T. Jemison, Fort Benning’s provost marshal.

And Major Jemison agrees with his men that he has one of the best organized and most efficient Military Police departments in any Army camp in the United States.

The provost marshal is one of the busiest persons in the military, according to Major Jemison.

He has the task of keeping the fences, gates, and barriers, fixed or moved as necessary, so that the military and non-military personnel can move about freely, without interference from the traffic of the city.

This is no small task, for there are thousands of people coming to and from the field every day, and the provost marshal must see that all of them have the proper passes or permits to be there.

The provost marshal must also see that the traffic is controlled, for there are many streets and avenues which lead to the field, and the provost marshal must be able to control the traffic and see that the people are moved in an orderly fashion.

He also has the task of seeing that the people who are admitted to the field are properly cared for, and that the property of the military is not stolen or destroyed.

In addition to these duties, the provost marshal must also see that the military personnel are treated fairly and justly, and that their rights are protected.

The provost marshal is a busy person, but he is also a man of great responsibility, and he is proud of the work that he does.

Here Are Some Notes For That Volume, World War II

Who hacked their way through those “impassable” jungles on Buna? Who crawled through those modern conveniences on Attu—including cold running water and hot flying lead? Who faced German 88’s at 200 yards of Salerno—and held? Who shot it out with crack Nazi troops so close they could touch them at the skirmish of the stonewalls on Hill 609—and cracked open the road to Bizerte? INFANTRY. Doughboys. The guys who spell it with rifles. With these facts indelibly imprinted in our minds, we are proud to pay tribute to FORT BENNING on her 26th anniversary. Here, the world’s best infantry is trained.

LIKE THE INFANTRYMEN. OUR UNIFORMS ARE “CLEAN, SLICK, AND TOUGH.” AND MADE
ESPECIALLY FOR THE JOB. THEY ARE A TRADITION WITH AMERICAN ARMY OFFICERS

When the mighty Fort Benning of today was first laid out 26 years ago, we put in our first line of Uniforms for Army Officers. On battlefields, parade grounds and Army posts, our fabrics are constantly being proved and perfected. They are clean cut with a world of fight in them against the ravages of war and time.

their silver wings and jump boots worn by the U. S. Army paratrooper connotes action shown above in lower center as troopers bail out of their C-47 transport. But is only the middle phase of the paratrooper's activities. Before he can jump, he must go through many hours of arduous training designed to train his mind for alertness and his muscles for complete coordination, presence or absence of which may spell success or disaster. In the above picture story THE BAYONET hopes to convey some idea of the rough and tough training given troopers here at Fort Benning which prepares them for the actual jumping stage, the middle phase, and for combat, the final stage, at which point he becomes an infantryman. Upper left—Here is shown the initial training given our paratroopers: full speed ahead at double time for 50 consecutive minutes. This type of road work builds leg muscles among other things and improves the wind. Upper center—It's more fun than monkeys, is this trainasium exercise bar in "C" Stage. Its purpose is obvious: building of body muscles. Upper right—Here students in "A" Stage get the uninitiated their first taste of jumping. Middle left—As if that weren't enough, troopers learn to leap from a tree "by means of a coordinating toss and the log off one shoulder into it on the other shoulder. Howdya center—Here students in "A" Stage get a sense of height and balance by means of hand-over-hand rope walking. Middle right—A full view of the rope tower. Lower left—All of the foregoing pictures illustrate in part the training the trooper gets before he is ready to pose for a photo. This type of five jumps which qualifies him as a paratrooper entitled to wear the coveted wings. (Photos by Parachute School Photographers, The Signal Photo Co.; and U. S. Army, Signal Corps.)

Post-trained Troopers Make Military History

They Have Spear-Headed Attacks On All Battlefronts

By Pvt. David Ewen

Soldiers of the sky, who have been thoroughly trained at The Parachute School at Fort Benning, Georgia, have their minute and direct effect on the outcome of the Second World War. They have already been recognized as a powerful, mobile, and versatile element of our armed forces. Their effectiveness has been shown in many campaigns and battles in various parts of the world.

This type of training is not new. The first parachute was used by the French in the American Revolutionary War with some success. The first American military use of the parachute was by the Union Army in the Civil War, but it was not until the development of the modern parachute that its effective use as a military weapon became possible.

The Parachute School at Fort Benning was established in 1941 and has trained over 100,000 paratroopers. It is the largest and most modern training facility of its kind in the world. The school teaches the fundamentals of parachute training, including the use of equipment, tactics, and procedures. It also provides practical experience through simulated parachute jumps and live jumps under the direction of experienced instructors.

The Parachute School is part of the United States Army Airborne School, which includes parachute training, airborne operations, and related activities. The school is responsible for training paratroopers and providing them with the skills necessary to operate as a mobile and effective element of the army.

with each new action in a paper where the enemy today stands poised with his awaited counterattack or air invasion of his homefront. At Fort Benning in the United States, this new wave is a sight not new. The united states army paratroopers have been trained for this purpose and innumerable successful missions have been carried out by them. These paratroopers have been trained in the Parachute School at Fort Benning, Georgia, and are the most important element of the war effort in the United States.

Port Benning's Bakers and Cooks School trains Army cooks and bakers to produce food for their enlisted and officers' messes. In addition, these students are trained in the art of making bread from scratch. The bakery is operated under the supervision of Lieut. Col. W. E. Rosenthal, Commandant, Port Benning, and the U.S. Army Signal Corps, Office of Public Information, Washington, D.C. The school is a part of the Georgia State Scholarship Program and is operated under the supervision of the Georgia State Board on Education. The school is also under the supervision of the Georgia State Board on Education.

The bread-making process begins with the moldering of the dough. The dough is then allowed to rise and is formed into loaves. The bread is then baked in the giant mixer. character, that's our word for him

It's the distinguishing attribute of our INFANTRY MAN and FORT BENNING has been training the world's finest for 26 years. Around the world the forces of freedom are waging a victorious fight, and everywhere, Benning-trained men are leading the advancing troops... proof they can "take it!"

Character, too, is the distinctive quality of the HORSTMANN UNIFORM. This all HAND-MADE UNIFORM with its precision workmanship, is designed for perfect fit. And, like the American foot soldier, is made to "take it!"... proven in the fact that since 1818, the HORSTMANN UNIFORM has served officers of the Army, Navy, and Marines!

Signal Photo Companies Live Life Of Thrills

In many respects, the Signal Corps is the most interesting organization in the Army. It is a fact that few of the men in the Signal Corps have ever been in a fight. They may not have seen any action, but they have trained others for battle and fought their way through the lines...

52 Chaplains Serve Soldiers' Spiritual Needs At Fort Benning

Three years ago there was not one chapel on the Main Post or in any of the special areas. Today, Chaplain Paul R. Runnels, the Post Chaplain, supervises a staff of active-duty chaplains and there are 52 chaplains stationed on the post with a monthly average attendance of over 4,000.

In addition, there are 28 other chaplains assigned to the various units stationed on the post who like his office for the maintenance of some kind or other. The religious program of Fort Benning is one of the best and completely organized in the Army. It is the Army's way of carrying on with the great army post and its traditions. Chaplain Runnels is a past president of the American Society for Chaplains.

Father William Head, diocesan supervisor of Catholic activities and supervised the work of the Catholic chaplains on the installation. But in the service for the post there are a number of men and women who made contributions to the chaplain work. Father Head is the chaplain of the Catholic church and Unitarian church and the Protestant church. He has been in the service for the past three years and has been active in the chaplain work in the Catholic church.

A number of the chaplains who serve with him are active in the chaplain work in the Catholic church. Father Head is a Pastoral Chaplain in the Catholic church and has been in the service for the past three years.

Congratulations to FORT BENNING On Your 26 Years of Achievement!

The pigeons used with the Air forces are now dropped in a paper bag device which protects them from the terrific blast of the propeller until they are far enough away to fly in safety. The force of their descent gradually strips the bag from the bird.

Another use for homing pigeons—and one that has saved many lives—is for air corps men who have made forced landings or in immediate danger. They are connected with the nearest Air Corp base by radio signals. The force of their descent gradually strips the bag from the bird.

There may be a report of a straggler which has been located, or the report may be that a straggler is within certain areas which are being guarded for a period of time. The report is sent to the nearest Air Corp base by radio signals. The force of their descent gradually strips the bag from the bird.

In the jungles, the Japanese have used homing pigeons to drop supplies to their men in the jungle. The pigeons are dropped from airplanes and fly back to their home base. WHEREVER WACS ARE SERVING, at home or abroad, they have been turning in such an excellent performance that high ranking Army officers are saying "Gee, we say Wacs." Fort Benning's Wacs are held in the same high esteem in recognition of the tip-top work they are doing here. Shown in the above strip are Wacs of the Station Complement engaged in a few of the numerous activities assigned them.

The War is a good worker. She was transferred to the Signal Corps in January 1943 and is now a Communications Officer. She was promoted to the rank of Captain in August 1943 and has received several decorations for her excellent work.

She is a shining example of the WAC's efficiency and is always ready to serve her country. Her performance is an inspiration to all those who work for the Signal Corps.

In conclusion, the WAC's have proved themselves to be a valuable asset to the Army. Their hard work and dedication have been recognized by high ranking officers, and their contributions to the war effort have not gone unnoticed.

NEW TIME-SAVING FEATURES

Speed-Up TURNSTILES

A new turnstile system similar to that used in New York City and Chicago is now installed at the Columbus Terminal, Main Post, Sand Hill and Harmony Church areas to speed loading and unloading.

Fare tokens are deposited in turnstiles at the entrance to loading area. Buses will depart promptly without time lost in collecting fares and making change. Passenger pick-ups will be made as usual.

Free "SHUTTLE BUSES"

Convenient "shuttle buses"—free of charge—to travel around the post are provided for visitors and camp personnel who do not desire to go to town. Buses operated by the Post Motor Pool will be supplemented by the Howard Shuttle buses and both will pass by the Main Post stations. Baker Village passengers will board buses at the Columbus bus station on the street to the right.

Another time-saving feature of this new service will be the elimination of a bus stop at the M. P. Gate on the way out of camp. Passes will be checked at the turnstiles before loading out of camp. Coming into camp will necessitate a stop at the Post M. P. gate.

Lawson Field Occupies Unique Place Among U.S. Army Air Force Bases

When Fort Benning was established in 1918, a small-hanger airfield was constructed for use by observation balloons at the Infantry School. The site chosen was two miles southwest of the post proper in the low river bottom bordering the Chattahoochee River. No name was assigned to the field. Not until 1924 was the airfield designated as the War Department at Lawson Field.

The airframe was an outgrowth of the time the Infantry School was opened for instruction. Its principal mission was to determine whether or not the data obtained from balloon observation would be of material benefit to Infantry troops in the field.

Post Red Cross Chapter Has Had Integral Part in Benning History

A history of Fort Benning would not be complete without reference to the history of the American Red Cross. In fact, the Red Cross has been an integral part of the history of the army since 1905. Before the establishment of the Red Cross, soldiers were left to fend for themselves in the event of a battle or other emergency. The Red Cross, founded in 1863, has been instrumental in providing assistance to soldiers and their families during times of conflict.

The Red Cross has been present at Fort Benning since the post was established in 1912. During World War II, the Red Cross played a vital role in providing aid to soldiers and their families. The organization provided food, clothing, and medical care to soldiers stationed at Fort Benning.

In addition to providing aid to soldiers, the Red Cross also played a role in training soldiers. The organization provided courses in first aid and basic medical care to soldiers at Fort Benning.

Today, the Red Cross continues to be an integral part of the history of Fort Benning. The organization provides aid to soldiers and their families during times of conflict, and also provides courses in first aid and basic medical care to soldiers at the post.

71st Division In One Year's Time Has Grown From Stack Of Orders To Highly Efficient Outfit

By Lt. Col. Joe E. Darby

It was little more than a year ago that the 71st Infantry Division was mustered into the Army in a few isolated units which have been developed into today's splendid fighting machine with a record to its credit. The division, as a unit, was organized on May 12, 1941, at Fort Benning, Georgia. The education and training of the soldiers who came into the organization at that time resulted in the growth of the division from a nucleus of 50 men to its present strength of more than 15,000. The 71st Division has been a part of the American military establishment since that time, having served in various capacities, including participation in the European theater of operations during World War II. Today, the division is stationed in the United States, providing a significant contribution to the country's defense capabilities.

135 Freight Cars Needed Monthly To Stock Post PX

Perhaps no PX is more devoted to its mission than that of the 14th Infantry Division, which operates the Fort Benning Exchange. In over 20 years of operation, the PX has grown from a small store to the largest in the Army. The PX is located on the Main Post, slightly over 1,300 feet from the line of battle, and is engaged daily in making available to the military and civilian personnel of the post the items of their everyday needs. The task required is performed with the utmost efficiency and on World war.

5,175 Reports of Survey Handled in 1944 by Board

Did you ever wonder what the specifications were on one of those "report of property" forms, when you apply for a mortgage or refinance your home? You can get a clue to the answer if you'd like to, but all you need to know is this: the Board of Commissioners of the Property Adjustment Board has been busy during the last year or two, handling over 5,175 reports. These reports were submitted to us during the period from May 1, 1944, to April 30, 1945, and they represent properties valued at $15,000,000. Of course, many of these reports were submitted by the same owners, and the total amount of property involved was much less than $15,000,000.

The report includes a full description of the property, including its location, size, and condition. The report also includes information about the ownership of the property, including the names and addresses of the owners. In some cases, the report includes information about the sale of the property, including the price paid and the date of sale.

The Property Adjustment Board is responsible for valuing property for the purposes of taxation and for determining the amount of taxes to be levied. The Board also provides advice to homeowners on how to improve the value of their property.

Eastern Air Lines salutes Fort Benning!

It is a privilege to salute Fort Benning on its 26th Anniversary. We at Eastern Air Lines are proud to serve the men here. We glory in the spirit of the units now stationed at Fort Benning, as we did in the spirit of those who have gone on from here. We know that with such men as these defenders, the rights of free people are safe.

To you, then, the officers and men of Fort Benning, our salute—and with it our pledge to uphold on the home front the ideals and principles you are fighting to defend, to contribute everything that it is possible for air transportation to contribute to help speed the Victory we are all working and fighting to achieve.
